Is Nepal Safe To Travel? When choosing a holiday destination, the important thing is to make sure you are travelling to a safe country. Of course recently Nepal has received a lot of media coverage regarding its political situation. What many people do not realize is that since October 2007 Nepal has had and upheld a peace agreement. Also during the conflict period there is no record of any travelers being injured or involved in any way. The country is well on its way to rebuilding the government and making a bright and secure future. The tourist increase in the past two seasons shows that Nepal is well and truly back on the travellers list of must visit destinations.
